Just finished "Breaking Trail" by Arlene Blum, her memoir about her life, her work as a chemist, and her many successful treks and climbs on some of the world's highest peaks. I loved her book - it's honest, exciting, interesting, and Blum is a great role model for women and girls. Blum was the expedition leader on the Women's Annapurna climb in 1978. She's a good writer and shows us her life.

BREAKING TRAIL: A CLIMBING LIFE is a full-scale memoir that explores how Arlene's childhood fuelled her need to climb - and how, in turn, her climbing liberated her from her childhood. Each chapter in the book begins with a poignant vignette from Blum's early life. Using these as starting points, she traces her evolution as a climber, from a hilariously incompetent beginner to a world-renowned Breaking Trail: A Climbing Life book by Arlene Blum Arlene Blum's new book, Breaking Trail, is a book for everyone interested in the experience of high peak mountaineering--plenty of thrills and chills for those who stayed up all night reading Into Thin Air or Touching the Void like I did.
