Best Answer: communism is a system of government, like democracy or dictatorship, the main point about it is that (in theory) everyone is equal, there is no single person or small group of people who rule the others. There are also no social classes (eg working classes, aristocracy etc).

However, it has

China - Wikipedia

China's constitution states that The People's Republic of China "is a socialist state under the people's democratic dictatorship led by the working class and based on the alliance of workers and peasants," and that the state organs "apply the principle of democratic centralism." The PRC is one of the world's only socialist states openly endorsing communism (see Ideology of the Communist Party

China - Pollution - Environment - The New York Times

China is choking on its own success. The economy is on a historic run, posting a succession of double-digit growth rates. But the growth derives, now more than at any time in the recent past, from

How communist is China, anyway? - slate.com

General Motors sold more cars in China than in the United States in the first half of 2010, and China now accounts for one-quarter of the company's global sales. That seems like a lot of

The Differences Between Communism and Socialism

Under communism, none of the "means of production" such as factories and land are owned by individuals.

Instead, the government controls the means of production, and all people work together. The wealth produced is shared among the people based on their needs rather than on their contribution to the work. The result, in theory, is a classless society where property is public, rather than
