This study examines the clausal noun-modifying construction (NMC) in Japanese, a much-discussed construction that embraces what have usually been called relative clause and noun complement constructions.

Noun-Modifying Clause Construction in Japanese - Oxford ...

The noun-modifying clause construction (NMCC) in Japanese is a complex noun phrase in which a prenominal clause is dependent on the head noun. Naturally occurring instances of the construction demonstrate that a single structure, schematized as [I predicate (finite/adnominal) Noun], represents a wide range of semantic relations between the
