T4: A Novel by Ann Clare LeZotte | Talking With My Hands

T4: A Novel by Ann Clare Lezotte is a historical fiction YA about a Deaf teen in Germany. Paula was mostly uneducated and isolated by her language that was limited to home signs. When the T4 program begins in Germany, a local priest convinces Paula's family to send her into hiding. Paula is only distantly aware of the war and why she is leaving her home as she is hidden in one place after another. Ann Clare LeZotte \(Author of T4\) - Goodreads Quotes by Ann Clare LeZotte Educating people is the best tool we have against forgetting (the events of the holocaust and T4). We must make sure nothing like T4 ever happens again.

The novel, T4 is based on a true story, in which the author, Ann Clare LeZotte is portraying a novel that is based on the theme of survival. It appears to be that the author's argument in writing this novel is to simply educate. The Well-Read Child: T4 by Ann Clare LeZotte For today's Poetry Friday selection, I'm reviewing Ann Clare LeZotte's debut novel, T4. Written in free verse, T4 tells the story of Paula Becker, a thirteen year old German girl who is deaf and a target of the Nazis who were ordered to kill disabled people under Action T4.

T4 by Ann Clare LeZotte | Kirkus Reviews

LeZotte repeatedly cuts away from the action to explain historical context and define terms, content better suited to a prose introduction or afterword than to verse.

Nonetheless, behind what reads like a fictionalized historical summary for young children are hints of a genuine literary gift. (Historical fiction, 9-12)
