Research shows that Therapeutic Storywriting Groups support pupils emotional wellbeing as well as improving their writing skills. This video looks at a group of schools in Tottenham who are delivering the intervention, following training delivered by Dr Trisha Waters from the Centre for Therapeutic Storywriting in collaboration with Therapeutic Storywriting | Story Links Training. Therapeutic Storywriting (Waters, 2004) uses story metaphor to address emotional issues that might be overwhelming for the child and possibly for the parent- if addressed directly. It is particularly useful when supporting children whose emotional difficulties are getting in the way of their learning.
